Dennis Doran Joins CMAA Staff as VP, Professional Development

Dennis Doran, who helped shape a series of influential CMAA/CMI Owners Surveys when he was a senior consultant at FMI, has joined CMAA as vice president for Professional Development.

Former VP George Gehringer will remain with the association as a consultant, with special emphasis on the CMIT program and international initiatives.

Doran was most recently general manager of the Maryland Division of Utility Line Services, a utility industry construction services firm. He has participated in the construction industry as a contractor, consultant, and trainer.

During his time with FMI, Dennis worked with organizations in the utility and construction industries to create continuing partnerships supporting significant gains for all parties involved.

“Dennis Doran’s professionalism and passion for teaching will be an asset to CMAA members. He holds tremendous industry knowledge and has proven ability to deliver outstanding professional development programs,” said CMAA president Bruce D’Agostino.

Doran holds a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration from the University of Maryland and is a Certified Public Accountant. He lives in Maryland and has two sons.

CMAA is North America's only organization dedicated exclusively to the interests of the professional Construction and Program management industry. On behalf of its 25 regional chapters and more than 5,500 public and private firms and individuals throughout the nation, CMAA promotes the Construction Management industry and provides professional resources, advocacy, professional development, certification, and business opportunities to its members. CMAA's national headquarters is located in McLean, Va. The Association’s website is www.cmaanet.org.
