Gehringer to Lead Professional Development at CMAA

McLean, VA—George S. Gehringer, PhD, a West Point graduate with more than 20 years' experience in training and professional development in both government and private settings, has joined the Construction Management Association of America (CMAA) as Director of Professional Development.

Gehringer will manage and expand CMAA's year-round PD programs, including the ongoing series of CMs TalkLive! online webinars, educational programs at two national conferences each year, and a variety of special events dedicated to key topics in the construction and program management profession.

"Dr. Gehringer is a trained psychologist who has particularly focused on education and workforce development issues," says CMAA Executive Director Bruce D'Agostino, CAE. "He is deeply experienced in bringing all of the most effective contemporary methods and tools to bear on continuing professional education, and he is a very significant addition to CMAA's resources."

Gehringer comes to CMAA from Prometric, an international testing services company based in Baltimore, MD. Previously, he had worked in varying capacities for McKim & Creed in Cary, NC, General Physics Corporation in Columbia, MD, and other organizations.

A graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, Gehringer also worked at the Academy as special assistant to the president and director of personnel, managing leadership development, communications, and other functions.

In addition to his Bachelor of Science degree from the Academy, Gehringer holds a Masters degree in Psychology from the University of Texas at El Paso and a doctorate in Psychology from the Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, DC.

CMAA is North America's only organization dedicated exclusively to the interests of the professional construction and program management industry. On behalf of its twenty-five regional chapters and more than 4,000 public and private firms and individuals throughout the Nation, CMAA promotes the construction management industry and provides professional resources, advocacy, professional development, certification, and business opportunities to its members. CMAA's national headquarters is located in McLean, Virginia and the Association's website is www.cmaanet.org.
